2012–2013 Dependency Appeal Application

Dear Appeal Applicant:

You are considered an independent student for financial aid purposes if you meet one of the following conditions at the time you complete and sign the 2012-2013 Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA):

- you will be 24 years old by December 31, 2011
- you are a graduate student working on a post-baccalaureate degree
- you are married
- you are an orphan or a ward of the court
- you are a veteran of the U.S. Armed Forces
- you have legal dependents other than a spouse who meet the definition of a legal dependent found in the FAFSA instructions

If you meet any of the above conditions, you do not need to complete this application.

Many students feel that they are independent because they currently live on their own or because their parents no longer claim them as dependents on their income taxes. Others feel they should be considered independent because their parents refuse to provide information on the FAFSA or because their parents cannot afford to help them with college expenses. However, these reasons are not sufficient for an appeal. The Financial Aid Office is required to consider parent information and expect a parental contribution for students who are not independent according to the above FAFSA definitions unless exceptions are made. Exceptions are made only when adequate documentation is provided.

If you are a dependent student according to the above information, but wish to apply for financial aid as an independent student, you must complete this form to appeal for re-classification. Carefully read all of the instructions, complete this form and return it to the Financial Aid Office with all the required documentation. Within 10 business days the Financial Aid Office will make a final determination of your status.

Filing this form does not guarantee that your appeal will be granted.

A. Reason for Appeal (check only one)

- 1. A severe situation exists in your family that prevents you from obtaining your parent's financial information. Physical or emotional abuse, severe estrangement, abandonment, parental drug or alcohol abuse, mental incapacity or another such situation beyond your control are examples of such a situation.
- 2. You are a non-U.S. citizen (who is otherwise eligible to receive Federal Financial Aid according to your non-citizen status) and your parents currently reside in a foreign country. However, you are not able to obtain parental information because of a long-standing political policy or civil unrest in the country where your parents live, which prevents mail or funds from passing into or out of the country.
- 3. You have been supporting yourself entirely on your own for an extended period of time (a minimum of 12 months), receiving no support whatsoever from your parents. This means that you must be paying all your own bills, including rent, food, utilities, school-related expenses, medical expenses, clothing and transportation with your own funds, excluding any Federal Aid you may have received as a dependent student.

B. Personal Statement and Documentation

In order for your appeal to be considered, you must illustrate why you feel you should be considered independent. Please write a personal statement in which you describe your circumstances and provide documentation that supports the information contained in your statement. The information required depends upon your reason for appeal. You need only provide the items requested for your appeal reason; you may disregard the other two sets of instructions. When writing your personal statement, be complete and specific. A short, highly generalized statement will cause your appeal to be denied. Be assured that all the information you provide will be held in the strictest confidence. Attach all statements and documentation, in chronological order, securely to this application.

If you checked Reason #1, please complete the following:

PERSONAL STATEMENT: On separate paper, tell us in your own words why you should be considered an independent student. Explain how and over what time period you came to support yourself. If you are receiving support from friends or relatives, you must describe the nature of that support and how you came to receive it. You must also describe the events in your family that led to your current separation from your parents.

DOCUMENTATION: Provide statements from at least two professional adults (other than family members) who can verify the family circumstances you described in your personal statement. Professional adults include clergy members, guidance counselors, teachers or professors, doctors, family counselors, mental health professionals, and law enforcement officers. The statements you submit must be originals, not photocopies.

If you checked Reason #2, please complete the following:

PERSONAL STATEMENT: On separate paper, tell us in your own words why you should be considered an independent student. Explain how and over what time period you came to support yourself. If you are receiving support from friends or relatives, you must describe the nature of that support and how you came to receive it. You must also describe the situation in the country where your parents reside that prevents mail and/or funds from leaving or entering the country.

DOCUMENTATION: Provide a statement from an official from the embassy (or other diplomatic office) of the country where your parents live that describes the political policy or civil unrest that exists there. The statement must verify that it is impossible to get mail and/or funds into or out of the country. The statement must be an original, not a photocopy.

If you checked Reason #3, please complete the following:

PERSONAL STATEMENT: On separate paper, tell us in your own words why you should be considered an independent student. Explain how and over what time period you came to support yourself.
